COUNTRY FACES ERA OF PROSPERITY

LARGE CROWDS VISIT EXPOSITION AND AUTOMOBILE SHOW SATURDAY

A Number of Distinguished Speakers Will Deliver Addresses During Week

BIG SHOW FOR LITTLE MONEY BY EXPOSITION

Malone Automobile Show Free To All On First Floor

The attendance at the Tennessee Valley Industrial Exposition Saturday was an index to the popularity of the enterprise. From the time the doors were opened to the time of closing there was a large and enthusiastic crowd who came intent on having a good time and viewing the collection of natural resources of the county and the district, as well as the well prepared booths of the local merchants.

Many of the collections were of an educational nature as well as intensely interesting. At the booth of the Albany knitting mills were machines at work showing the process of making hosiery, three machines being required to complete the sock.

A favorable impression was created in the minds of all who were heard of natural resources of the county and the district.

The attendance was something over two thousand on the opening day, and it is believed that the interest will increase with each day. Special days will be given to out of town people, and this is expected to bring a large number of visitors to the city.

A small fee of 10 cents is charged for entrance to the Tennessee Valley Industrial Exposition which is being held on the upper floors, but the automobile show of the Malone Coal, Grain and Motor company, on the ground floor is free. Mr. Malone has done a fine thing in providing the automobile show, and it required much work and expense to bring it to the high standard of entertainment that is provided for the public free. Excellent programs of music and song will be carried out during the week, these being features of the automobile show.

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20—According to a cable dispatch to the Japanese-American, published here in the Japanese language, a plot was on to assassinate the head of the Japanese delegation to the armament conference held at Washington recently.

According to the dispatch vigilance of officers prevented a school boy who was to assassinate at the Tokio station. In some manner the police learned of the plot and arrested the boy, said to have been employed at the home of a Tokyo university professor. The assassination was to have taken place on Saturday when the plane arrived.

Scouts Are Doing Wonderful Work

The Boy Scouts are doing splendid service at the industrial exposition and auto show. They are maintaining three service stations, in addition to their woodland camp. The service stations are maintained on the second floor and the camp on the ground floor in the north building. The boys have been pressed into service to sell the 10 cent tickets to the exposition, and are polite and attentive to all visitors, whether they are in the free auto show or in the upper rooms.

The following personnel of officers are now in charge: Scout Master Carl D. Patterson, Drill Master Theodore Patton; Patrol Leaders Fitzhugh Hobart, Robert Skidmore, Ernest Holtsford, Robert Warden and Lencar Royer.

JUDGE CLAYTON WILL DECIDE IN MONTEVALLO MINING CO. CASE

Hearing to Take Place March 3 As To Bankruptcy

DEFENSE TO SHOW NO COLLUSION

Prohibits Trustee To Act In Case Without Permission

Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 20—In an order postponing until March 3 the petition of the state for the dismissal of the bankruptcy proceedings filed by the Montevallo Mining company Saturday afternoon, Judge Henry D. Clayton, judge of the middle and northern districts of Alabama, assumed full authority over the company and prohibited David Roberts, trustee, from taking any steps or exercising any authority over the affairs of the Montevallo Mining company without the permission of Judge Clayton.

Judge Clayton also emphasized the fact that he intended to render the decision in the case and that he would not countenance any motion for the transfer of the case to Judge W. I. Grubb of the northern district. He said he had great respect for Judge Grubb and would gladly co-operate with him in any matters, but knew Judge Grubb would not assume jurisdiction over cases brought before Judge Clayton and that he would not take any authority over Judge Grubb's cases.

Judge Clayton's declaration that he intended to pass upon the merits of the state's petition came after Hugo Black, attorney for several convicts who have suits against the Montevallo Mining company, requested that notice be given to him of any motion to transfer the proceedings to Judge Grubb. Judge Clayton said such a motion would not avail anything because he would dispose of the petition regardless of such a motion. Judge Clayton also announced that the hearing March 3 which will determine whether or not the Montevallo Mining company will be permitted to have its financial affairs adjusted in the bankruptcy court will be held in Montgomery. He said if any attorney objected to Montgomery he would set the case for Birmingham in order to remove any doubt, but the attorney making such objection should remember that the court would remember in the days to come.

The Montevallo Mining company appeared before Judge Clayton in answer to the petition with its Birmingham attorneys, the list being augmented by an arrival in Montgomery by the employment of the law firm of Steiner, Crum and Weil. Birmingham attorneys who came to represent the company and creditors other than the state were E. H. Cabiness, of the firm of Cabiness, Johnston, Cooke and Cabiness; Val J. Nesbitt, who was the temporary receiver, and W. H. Sadler, who has been designated as attorney for the trustee. The state was represented by Attorney General Harwell G. Davis, Judge James J. Mayfield and Marion Rushton, special assistant attorneys general, and Hugo L. Black, of Birmingham, who appeared with the state as the representative of state convicts who have civil suits alleging personal injuries against the company.

As soon as the case was called Judge B. P. Crum, speaking for the company, the creditors and the trustee, moved that a postponement be granted in order that the defense may prepare its case and declared that the defense proposed to contest seriously the state's allegation that a collusion had been entered into and that an effort was being made to practice a fraud against the state by the cancellation of the convict lease contract. Mr. Crum said the case was an unusual one and one in which some time should be granted for the preparation

Bond Brothers May Establish Plant Here

It was learned today from authoritative sources that the Bond Lumber company, was considering the early establishment of a crosscutting plant at this point. They have recently established a plant of this character at Louisville, Ky., and another one is to be established in North Alabama or Tennessee. It was also learned that this point was a favored section for a plant of this character.

The chamber of commerce has the matter in hand and will use all means to induce the locating of it here.

Mr. O. S. Bond, head of the Bond Lumber company, was in the city Saturday and from this source it was learned that the erection of a plant of this character was under consideration.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS SHOWING GROWTH

At no time in the past have the Sunday schools of the Twin Cities shown such large enrollment as at the present time. Never has the Southside Methodist Sunday school shown such large enrollments—279 being present recently. Rev. J. W. Curl, the pastor, stated that his school was working for the 300 mark.

The Central Baptist Sunday school is another one to smash all previous records with around 410 present for the last few Sundays. The Central Methodist has been steadily climbing for the past few months until that school now is going on toward the 450 mark. Like gains are shown in the majority, if not all, the Sunday schools.

The First Baptist school in Decatur has shown remarkable gains, and the First Methodist is going toward the 300 mark. Especially is the men's Bible class of this school gaining a distinction as to numbers and interest. At present this class, known as "The Lend-a-Hand class," is joined in a membership contest with the Women's Bible class.

HOUSE MILITARY COMMITTEE HAS FORD'S MUSCLE SHOALS OFFER

Court Action Is Possible To Prove Claimed Contractual Rights

ACCEPTANCE OR REJECTION EXPECTED EARLY

Chief Engineer Mayo Conferring With Manufacturer At Detroit

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—The congressional action of the Ford offer to lease and operate Muscle Shoals and other functioning units embraced therein went to the house military committee today for action.

Witnesses told the committee that the acceptance of Ford's bid would violate contractual rights entered into by the corporation and the government of June 8, 1918. The government would have to live up to its contract or enter the courts to prove its rights. We did not fall down on our part of the contract but built the Air Nitrate's plant and furnished the government with explosives needed for a war use. Without our co-operation the Air Nitrate's plant could not have been built and operated. All we got out of it was the right to purchase the plant if the government intended to sell," said the witness.

Before the hearings of the week are over the house military committee expect to have practically framed a decision whether to recommend acceptance or rejection of the Ford offer.

W. D. Mayo, chief engineer for the Ford interests, is today conferring with his chief at Detroit. Upon Ford's decision whether he will agree to certain modifications embraced in his bid depends action of the committee.

The principal modification being whether or not he will incorporate in it a prescribed amount of fertilizer will be manufactured.

State Offers $300 Reward

Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 20—Governor Kilby issued a proclamation Saturday offering a reward of $300 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of Dewell Barrett, young man of Coosa county. Barrett had been missing several days and his body was found in a creek near Rockford early in the week. His neck had been broken, his skull crushed and his eyes had been pulled from his head.

Citizens appealed for the reward and expressed the opinion that with this help of the state one or more arrests can be made during the next few days.

FAVORS PASSAGE RECLAMATION BILL

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—A senatorial alignment of a bloc made in the senate today favors the early passage of the reclamation bill. The bill provides for the early reclamation of millions of acres of swamp lands in the south by drainage, and of arid lands in the west by sanitation.

The bill also provides for the utilization of the services of all war veterans in the work of reclamation and provides for the priority of entry rights for all veterans. The reclamation bloc included nearly all senators of both parties in the west and south.

Secretary of the Interior Fall declared for the measure not only for himself but for President Harding also. Secretary Fall asked that two amendments be made to the bill both of a technical nature, and relating only to verbiage. I have been and am now most thoroughly in accord with the President with such recommendation and can without hesitancy say to your committee that the bill meets with my thorough approval, Secretary Fall said.

SERVICES AT FIRST BAPTIST, DACATUR, WELL ATTENDED MORN AND EVENING

MRS. DAVIDSON SINGS BEAUTIFUL SOLO

Congregation Joins in Singing Of Inspiring Hymns

The attendance was good at both the morning and evening services of the First Baptist church of Decatur yesterday. With the strong choir leading the congregation joined heartily in such old but inspiring hymns as: "Revive Us Again" and "Jesus Paid It All." At night Dr. Davidson, the pastor, preached on the subject, "No More He Remembers Our Sins," and in connection the quartette sang, "Though Your Sins be as Scarlet."

The Sunday school attendance was reported as very gratifying and as nearly four times that of two years ago and a good advance over a year ago. A conference of workers met at the church Sunday afternoon to talk over plans for space enlargement and a perfect other plans.

One of the song offerings at the 11 o'clock service was a solo, beautifully sung by Mrs. C. C. Davidson, entitled "Alone." The text for the morning hour was "What Think Ye of Christ, Whose Son is He?" The pastor stated that this question is the most vital one of the age and that everyone had to meet it at some time, and that the way a man answered determined a man's happiness and usefulness in this life and his destiny in the life to come. Continuing, he said, "Jesus is the center of interest and around His personality revolves all history. Anti-supernaturalists were dealt with as denying that Christ is God's son and as cutting out of the Bible, as an ancient King did, the parts they did not accept. There has been a revival of this kind of propaganda since the world war—as always when there is a revival of interest in Kingdom affairs there is always a marshaling of the hosts of Satan. There are men in our pulpits however who thunder against these 'wolves in sheep's clothing' and recently they and their books have been put out of denominational schools and Christian colleges. Higher critics even invade theological seminaries.

"This so-called historical school of Christianity has been unable to explain away the Christ of prophecy, of the Gospels, of history and of experience. With His pierced hands he has lifted nations from their foundations and still governs the ages. He has changed the whole course of history. Then we know the Christ in personal experience. We have met him as Saul of Tarsus did. He hath redeemed us in his own body on the tree. He teaches us our need of God, brings us into fellowship with Him, shows us our obligation to God and gives us power to overcome. That is the true religion.

"What do the records say? 'For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and his name shall be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace.' 'He is a most Wonderful Counselor. He is our friends and our teacher. No man ever taught as this man. No man can do these things except God be with him. When in trouble call on your friend. He is concerned with all the affairs of life. All those who would be successful in business are advised to lay their plans before Him, to ask his blessing and guidance, never resort to 'tricks of the trade' and recognize your stewardship to God. Pay him one-tenth as the minimum debt to Him. This will assure success. Our God is also the Mighty God. 'In the beginning was the Word (Logos), the Word was with God and the Word was God.' He created all things. His wonders, signs and powers, His teachings, His life,"

GOVERNOR HARDING SAYS OUR COUNTRY FACES GREAT THINGS OF LONG DURATION

Annual Report to Congress By Federal Reserve Board Says

SANER BUSINESS IN ALL LINES BE HAD

Cites More Confident Feeling And Broader Business Plans

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—That the United States faces an era of prosperity of longer duration than ever experienced in its history, and the era that is dawning would be marked by saner business methods along all lines was embodied in a report made public today by Governor Harding of the federal reserve board in his annual report made to congress.

Governor Harding gave notice of a better condition and better business prospects were in view, and better adjustment of finances bore out the contention that the country has about reached the end of deflation.

A more confident feeling in the investment market and broader plans of business generally was cited to congress as favorable facts.

Stork Active In Alabama

Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 20—More than two times as many births were reported to the state health department than deaths during 1921, according to figures made public today by Dr. H. G. Perry, registrar of the bureau of vital and mortuary statistics. The number of births reported during the year was 58,145 or 24.7 births in every one thousand population. The number of deaths for the same period was 23,144 or 9.3 deaths in each one thousand population.

The births show a greater increase last year than any year since the state began to gather the statistics. Dr. Perry, in his statement, appealed to all physicians and citizens to do their part in making the records of the bureau more complete during 1922.

Drive On Against Malaria In Morgan

The Morgan county health department is making a special drive against malaria. Literature bearing on that disease is on exhibition at the health booth in the exposition, but instead of distributing it on the spot, Mrs. B. F. Austin takes the names and addresses of any and all who wish the malaria literature or any of the other numerous publications of the health department and will mail it out to them daily. A real water pool is maintained with "wriggle tail" eating fish swimming in it, and the right kind of ditch and the wrong kind is shown, to be made for the purpose of destroying mosquitoes.

Farmers Enter Political Arena

"The Morgan county farm bureau resolution passed Saturday," said F. A. Bloodworth, "endorsing the Ford offer are practically the same as those passed at the Masonic Theatre, only we stated that no company or individual bid except Ford's should be considered favorably by congress at this time.

"We took the ground as to Mr. Ford that he, and he alone, had made the Shoals property valuable in the eyes of the world, and that he should have the full benefit of what he had done, without eleventh hour interference from any source whatsoever."

"NED BRACE" WILL CENSOR ADVERTISEMENTS IN AGE-HERALD.

Following the previously announced policy of his newspaper to censor advertisements, E. W. Barrett, editor of the Age-Herald in his Sunday morning "Ned Brace" column points out some flagrant example of where advertisers have presumed upon the credulity of the buying public, and reiterates his determination to see to it that none but honest advertisements find a place in his newspaper. Mr. Barrett says "it is indeed wise that the Age-Herald proposes to censor advertisements in the future, as it always censors news. The honest merchants will appreciate it, and will aid in the censorship." Mr. Barrett relates the following incidents as coming under his notice:

"I well remember many years ago, when first entering the Birmingham newspaper field, that one merchant advertised 1,000 dozen of a certain brand of men's collars, which then sold for 25c each, at 10c each. Naturally the writer wanted some of those collars at such a bargain, and called to purchase the same. The merchant in question had not one single collar of this brand, but announced that he had just as good a collar for 10c. I was a victim and told him that a newspaper was responsible for its advertisements and that complaint would be made. It taught him a lesson.

"But, some time thereafter, another merchant advertised a certain brand of children's hose for 25c a pair. A call upon this merchant for this brand of hose developed the fact that he had none of them but had a very inferior and defective cotton hose which was selling at this price. His answer to complaint was that he simply advertised to get people in his store. He would then sell them something.

SUNDAY DAILY.

A perusal of the columns of the Sunday Daily revealed the fact we think that in it you have one of the best buys in all North Alabama. The advertising patronage accorded this issue is a revelation to all and emphasizes the wide range of merchandise that the wide-awake merchants of the Twin Cities have to offer, and the astonishing low prices prevailing on seasonable merchandise.

The news columns were brim full of the latest news, both foreign and local. The features of which there were many compare favorably with the dailies of much larger cities. The management thanks the generous public for the splendid array of well gotten up advertising, and the further fact that they realize that in the Daily they have a newspaper that is a newspaper in every sense of the word. Confidence, one of the greatest assets known.

Those who are not reading the paper are losing sight of the fact that it is a home institution, and as such deeply interested in every move and measure that has for its end the advancement of each and every development that is calculated to enhance the moral, social, religious and business interests of the place where it is published. With these facts before you, can you longer refrain from becoming one of our regular readers?

The management of the Daily should it fail to thank each and every one of its associates for producing so excellent an edition in so short a time would be untrue to itself. Long trying hours they labored, none sparing themselves for which they have sincere appreciation.

WILL FIGHT POWER COMPANY.

The Chamber of Commerce of all the cities of Alabama are wiring the Alabama representatives in congress today protesting against the proposed purchase of Muscle Shoals Power plant by the Alabama Power Company.

The Alabama Power Company is endeavoring to hold monopoly on the hydroelectric power in this state. We have watched its maneuvers since the Ford offer has been made. It worked first through a 'decoy duck' but failing in that the big corporation went out in the open and is now endeavoring to block the plan of Mr. Ford to take over and develop this great enterprise in behalf of the people. The Alabama Power Company is not the only link in the chain of Big Business that is trying to block Mr. Ford. The Fertilizer Trust, the Aluminum Trust and the Power Trust are all hand in glove with the Alabama Power Company or with other selfish interests that will bring forth a plan to block Mr. Ford. But the people are aroused. Governor Taylor of Tennessee sounded the keynote when he told the congressional committee that the Alabama Power Company nor any other company for that matter would be welcome either in Tennessee or Alabama if they have to come into these states at the price of keeping Henry Ford out of Muscle Shoals.

We hope the fight being made will be effective. The Alabama Power Company has been in this state a number of years. No one has yet risen to praise it as a great liberal institution working unselfishly for the bettering of conditions for the people of the state. What Big Business is afraid of in the proposal of Mr. Ford is that he will not only produce fertilizer for the farmer cheaper than any other agency will produce it, but will manufacture all farm implements and many household necessities and sell them at such a price that the big trusts will be forced to take their hands out of the pockets of the southern farmer and home owner. That is the trouble with the Ford offer. He wants to serve the people and the selfish interests headed by the Alabama Power Company want to exploit the people and levy tribute upon every home in this state and in the South and make the farmers, business men and laboring men of this section pay the tribute thus laid.—Andalusia Star.

The per capita appropriation for Auburn is lower than that of any other agricultural and mechanical college in the South, according to figures made public in a statement issued Monday by John V. Denson, president of the alumni association of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

The figures range all the way from $108 per annum at Auburn to $512 per student at the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College. Even Arkansas and Florida, which do not take very high rank in educational matters, both surpass Alabama in the support given the agricultural and mechanical colleges, according to these figures which are taken from a report of the United States Commissioner of Education for the year 1920-1921, the latest figures available.

"It might be interesting to the people to know that some states appropriate nearly as much per student in the elementary schools as Alabama does to support her agricultural and mechanical college which is to train the men who must develop the state," said Mr. Denson. "One of the striking examples of the inadequacy of the support given Auburn as compared with that of other Southern states is in the case of Clemson of South Carolina. We do not rank that state as the equal of Alabama in either wealth or progressiveness yet Clemson with two-thirds as many students as Auburn receives three times as much money from the state as Auburn. In other words Clemson received from the state of South Carolina $409 for every student against $108 for Auburn.—Birmingham News.

It was learned from planters from many districts of the county who are attending the Tennessee Valley Industrial Exposition that the continued wet weather is greatly retarding the planting of spring oats, and other farm preparation that should be done now. There has been no time within the past months that they could get into the fields to work, and they are becoming restive over the long delay.

The spring oat crop is one that they always look forward to as it augments the feed for stock at a time when feed may be getting scarce with many on the farm. The present year will be an exception of this rule, for most of them have plenty of corn with which to make the coming crop.

They say that it is not yet too late to sow oats, but unless they get this part of the spring work off soon it will all come on once, and some necessary parts of it may in the rush be neglected.

No one knows any better than the fertilizer trust that Henry Ford will make fertilizer just as he says he will when he gets Muscle Shoals. They believe it with all their heart, mind and money. This is the reason they are putting up such a strong fight to keep him from getting the property, and this is the reason that they are flooding the newspaper offices with propaganda, seeking to make the impression that Ford cannot comply with the promise. Now, it is passing strange that the fertilizer trust could grasp the truth of Ford's statement so quick, and it also passing strange that it takes some authorities at Washington so long to realize a truth, when the fertilizer trust took it for granted and believed it from the very first.

If there were no ideals, there would be no great incentive to action. Ideals are great stimulators.

As to what is thought of the Senate farm bloc, depends entirely on whose ox was blocked.

FORMER GOVERNOR O'NEAL FOR ACCEPTANCE OF OF FORD'S OFFER

Strong Criticism of Secretary Weeks Whom, He Says, Attempted to Belittle Detroit Manufacturer; Raps Alabama Power Company For Putting in Bid

In a communication received from former Governor Emmet O'Neil, he strongly endorses the bid of Henry Ford for Muscle Shoals, and condemns the idea of acceptance of the counter bid of the Alabama Power company which was in keeping, he says, with their divers and sinister methods.

He also criticizes Secretary of War Weeks for "passing the buck to congress" on the Ford proposition.

Governor O'Neil begins his presentation of the case by declaring that he Alabama Power company seeks to gain control of Muscle Shoals "to exploit it, not in the interest of the farmer or the public but solely to swell the dividends of its Canadian and English stockholders." He further states that "the acceptance by congress of the proposed lease would nullify and defeat the primary purpose they sought to accomplish by the enactment of the law abolishing a nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, which was the manufacture of nitrates for powder and munitions in war and fertilizers in times of peace; it was not the primary purpose of congress to build the Wilson dam to create hydro-electric energy for sale by a power company, but to develop the manufacture of atmospheric nitrogen."

He points out further that "it will be noted that the Alabama Power company does not propose to manufacture nitrates. If their offer is accepted, the Secretary of War will be compelled to reverse his well declared policy against embarking the government in the manufacture of fertilizer in competition with private interests; it to organize a government corporation to manufacture nitrates at government expense."

At about the time that the Ford offer made the waterpower companies of the South and Southwest met together and through their engineers prepared a memorial to the congress declaring that the entire Muscle Shoals project was visionary, impracticable and without value. While the Alabama Power company aided in the preparation of that report and gave their endorsement, I am informed they asked to be excused from signing it on the ground that it might affect their political fortunes."

In condemning the tactics of Secretary Weeks in handling the Ford offer, Governor O'Neil says: "Although he had at his command all the experts in the war and engineering departments and sources of information which no congressman could possess, he would decline to pass judgment on the offer. In the language of the street, he thought it safer to "pass the buck" to congress. When the Ford offer was submitted and Mr. Weeks appeared before congress, a stranger hearing his testimony would have supposed that he had appeared to prosecute Ford for some great public offense, instead of merely submitting a bid by which he was seeking to devote part of the millions he had accumulated to the betterment of the great farming interests of the country. In short, during his testimony he merely repeated every petty and unfounded argument and statement which had been sent broadcast over the country by the fertilizer trust."

Governor O'Neil concludes with the following query: "Would not the success of the Alabama Power company mean the triumph of the fertilizer, gunpowder, and waterpower trusts, and the other profiteering trusts, who are opposed to Ford because they claim the acceptance of his offer would mean that labor would be demoralized by an increase of its wage and the power he would develop would be used in competition with their trusts by decreasing the cost of fertilizer and enormously enhancing agriculture by the enrichment that would follow cheaper and better fertilizers? Ford's methods are not those of Wall street, and he would exploit, not to increase his wealth, but to give employment to labor at higher wages and to enable the farmer, no longer sowing in tears, to reap in joy—that joy which comes from a knowledge of increased production and more remunerative markets through industrial development."—Montgomery Advertiser.

What Mothers Can Do To Have Real Prize Babies

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

WHAT are the lessons to be learned from the baby contests recently held in New York?

Upward of twenty thousand infants were entered for the prizes. Babies of every nationality, blonde babies and dark babies, white, yellow and black, were put forward by their fond mothers, each hoping to win first place.

It was extremely difficult to select from this wealth of contestants a single baby worthy of first honors. As a matter of fact, the judges failed to make ultimate determination and divided the first prize between two babies who had passed the semi-finals with equal marks.

The most significant thing about each about one year and a half old, had been regular visitors to a baby health station. From the early age of one month, each baby had the benefits of systematic physical examinations and medical advice. The owner of an automobile who neglects to put his car in the shop once in a while for a general overhauling will find his machine running on one cylinder, "knocking," lacking in power or absolutely stationary.

Why should an automobile be given better care than a baby? Why should a racehorse be given more attention than a contestant in life's race? No woman lacks that most wonderful of instincts—maternal love. Her instincts of motherhood tell her many things. But with all this, she needs skilled professional advice. Today "just growned," but modern medical knowledge will smooth the way for better physical development and happier lives for the little ones of today.

These two prize babies and all the babies considered for the final contests had been brought up by rule. Their feedings had been prepared scientifically. They had had regular hours for sleep or rest. Every day their hours were taken out into the open. Their living-rooms were always ventilated. Each slept alone in a room with open windows. Each was bathed and dressed in a proper way.

The nose, mouth, throat, ears and digestive organs were normal, because the doctors and nurses never neglected what might appear to the mother to be an unimportant symptom.

Clean limbs, white teeth, clear skin, normal function of every abdominal organ, proper breathing space, and lung action, good eyesight and hearing, correct posture of the body and almost general physical perfection are the result of health education.

Answers to Health Questions

M. J. K. Q—I have a swelling on the right side of my neck about the size of an egg. I have been told that I have a tubercular gland. What would you advise me to do?

A—If you have a tubercular gland, you should be under the care of a physician. I would suggest, however, that you have your doctor give you a thorough examination to determine whether it is a tubercular condition or merely an enlarged gland which is causing this trouble, and then follow the treatment he will base on his findings.

M. R. S. Q—I am a young girl, 17 years of age. I am about 6 feet tall. Is there a way to shorten my height?

A—There is no way to retard your growth. Some day you may be very glad you are so tall.

Mrs. A. N. Q—My little girl when 3 years old was stricken with a fever that the doctors said was brain fever. She recovered, but has been deaf ever since. She can hear very loud noises. Will you kindly advise me what to do for her?

A—It is very difficult to say just what the trouble is without an examination, but it may be that the nerve of hearing is affected. She should be under the treatment of an ear specialist. Some treatment might improve this condition considerably.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

ONE THING AT A TIME

THE successful worker, whose achievements are greatest at the end of the day, is he or she who does but one thing at a time, and refuses to leave it until it is finished.

Such a worker never vacillates between one duty and another. There is no undue confusion in the mind by wavering.

By putting off the seemingly difficult task for the easier.

Everything is taken up as it comes, completed in every detail, ready for the scan of the master at the top.

The worker who flits from pillar to post, starts in one direction and suddenly sets his face in another, never really gets anywhere.

He is lacking of stability, and at the end of the year he is about where he began, with no prospect of advancement and no hope of improvement. Indeed, in spite of his feverish, hurried efforts, he is slipping down grade.

Doing the job in hand and sticking to it until it is done to the very end is the only way to achieve success.

Train yourself to do this. In a little while you will find that you are getting speed with less friction. There will be no more irritability and lassitude at the end of the day.

Instead of going home at night in an ill humor, with every nerve tingling and on edge, you will find that your brain is clear and your thoughts at rest.

This, you will discover later, is because of the orderly method adopted of taking up but one subject at a time and not letting it go until you have no further use for it.

One of the foremost merchants of New York, confronted with thousands of serious questions every day, has formed the habit of returning to his home at night as care-free as a school boy during vacation season.

When he leaves his desk, he leaves his perplexities.

The next morning he comes in bright-eyed, light-hearted, eager to get in the fray.

If by chance the first encounter should happen to be troublesome, he dispenses with it before proceeding to another.

There is no loss of time, no trying of nerve force in flitting from one problem to another.

He drives straight ahead and makes decision after decision without the slightest sign of flurry.

And you, however burdened you may be, can do the same if you hold unwaveringly to the same course.

KIDDIES SIX

By Will M. Maupin

THE BIGGEST BOY

THE "Biggest Boy" is not at home. He "flew the nest" last night. I knew the day was bound to come. And yet tears dim my sight. The "Biggest Boy" has said goodbye. And gone to play his part. On life's grim battlefield, and I am lone and sad of heart.

The "Biggest Boy" said "Goodbye, Dad!"

And "Dad" said, "Goodbye, son!" And then the boy with head erect, Went forth—his work begun. And over in the corner there "Dad's" eyes will fall upon The "Biggest Boy's" now vacant chair, And miss the boy that's gone.

The "Biggest Boy" culped back a sob When on his lips was pressed The little mother's goodbye kiss. When mother's hands caressed, And then he smiled and went his way To fight and win, or die; While "Dad" and mother could but say, "God bless you, son; goodbye!"

The "Biggest Boy" is in the ranks Of that great fighting band That seeks by arts of toil and peace To uphold this fair land. And "Dad" and mother fondly hope As only parents can, The "Biggest Boy" will do his part. And do it like a man.

WALNUT OF ANY OLD KIND VALUABLE

There are on the loading yards of the Bond Lumber company here, several thousand feet of walnut logs. It was thought for some time that practically all the walnut timber had disappeared from the country. The attractive price is causing many to search for the fast disappearing wood from the forests of our country, with the result that it is being delivered in considerable quantities.

It was quite an unusual sight to a reporter of The Daily when he visited the loading yard to see walnut trees actually dug up, roots and all, and it is for this class of saw stocks the company pays the best price. The spot price of the saw stock is used for making gun stocks. An unsightly log about 20 feet in length containing roots of irregular length brought the one who delivered it on the yard something over $75.00.

Several years ago a saw stock of this character would have been worthless from a market point of view, and emphasized the fact that inventive genius is constantly on the alert inventing means to take care of practically everything and turn it to channels of profit.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

The Importance of Proper Dress in Service.

Not out of uniform, the household help should be properly dressed to keep up the tone of an establishment. Uncleaned or untidy-looking servants reflect discredit on the housekeeper. There are set rules for uniformed servants and flaxbraid for those not in uniform.

In very small houses, where but one or possibly two servants are kept, they often use their own judgment as to what to wear and the housewife is timid about speaking for fear of prompt notice. She should decide for what she wishes, and the maid should be told, before the bargain is made, what to expect. Of course, in this case the woman should furnish aprons, the morning dresses of plain-colored or striped gingham, caps and black or gray aprons, afternoon dresses. The outfit for these things is not very serious, for in many instances, if patterns are provided, the maids themselves are willing to make the things.

A few suggestions in regard to uniforms may not come amiss, for even though we clothe but one or two servants, it is well to know the correct things which should be worn by a target staff. Many women who have large stables neglect this all-important point and often in a pretentious home a motley crew in appearance are the servants. Let us first consider the cook. Her uniform is in GABRIEL'S model, with a high collar, a turn-over collar of white or self-material, and an elbow sleeve. A cover-all apron is slipped on while her roughest work is being done, and a white linen apron and mullin cap are worn when she is at her cooking. As she is rarely out of her kitchen, this uniform, with three full changes a week, is all that she requires. The chambermaid often combines her duties with those of waitress, and in the morning, when doing her work, she wears a simple gingham or percale dress with white turnback collar and cuffs, a white apron with a bib and a close white cap. In the afternoon she dons her black or gray alpaca as the case may be, and with it her white collar, cuffs, butterfly cap with a black bow on it, and her white apron with straps over the shoulders. The parlor-maid is garbed in the same manner, and also helps wait on table or helps in the pantry during the dining hour. Her white apron is a different shape, pointed, with a pointed bib, and her cap is a white ruche bandeau with a little black bow at either side, which distinguishes her from the chambermaid. It must be remembered that there is class in all service.

The lady's maid usually wears little wash merino dresses made simply but attractively, and a small white apron of fine material when at work, and when about the house or rooms little silk aprons. For evening she wears a little lace apron over her lilac or gray dress. As she often accompanies her mistress on shopping tours or traveling, she has a gray or blue tailored suit and has to match with a silk shirtwaist of the same color, with white collar and cuffs.

The child's nurse is generally in white from shoes to cap. When she goes out she wears the English ulster coat and close silk bonnet with white ties and ruche. In summer the mob cap with long ribbons may be used.

The housekeeper wears a cap in the morning and a headress in the afternoon. The governess does not wear a cap, and her apron is a small silk affair trimmed or embroidered. The library maid is also granted her if she attends any affair in the home to wear one of her own gowns, providing it is simple.

Easy to Check Sneezes.

As many know, sneezing may be averted by pressing firmly upon the upper lip with the fingers. The "why" of this is that by so doing we deaden the impression made up a certain branch of the "fifth nerve," sneezing being a reflex action excited by some slight impression made upon that nerve. Proof of this is seen in the fact that sneezing never takes place when the nerve mentioned is paralyzed, even though the sense of smell be fully retained.

THE GREEDY SQUIRREL

HE IS sure it all happened, but his mother told him if he had not eaten such a heavy supper he would not have dreamed it—but for all that he has his tail to prove his story.

Grey Squirrel had a very bad habit of getting up after all the family were in bed and getting nuts that were to be served for breakfast, for he was a greedy little fellow and cared little about anyone but himself.

One night as he got out of his bed he saw a light shining, and when he looked out of the window of his house he saw under the bushes across the path a long table spread for a feast.

Around the table sat so many little men in green and red suits that Grey could not count them.

These little men all wore red caps, which they were very careful to make sure were on their heads, for every once in a while Grey noticed that they would feel to see that the red cap was in place.

Then out of the house he carefully crept and was soon on the other side of the path hiding behind some bushes, where he could plainly see all that happened.

Of course, the little men feasting were Goblins and Grey should have known better than to have gone out of the house while they could be seen, for those little magic people are very jealous of any eyes that look at them other than their own magic folks.

But his greediness soon got him into trouble, for he poked his little head out too far and a Goblin saw him.

Quick as a flash he pointed a long pointed finger at Grey Squirrel and gave a funny little cry of "kool, kool."

Grey Squirrel, of course, expected to dart back from sight and run as he always did; but to his surprise he of the defense. The state opposed the motion and Mr. Rushon, speaking for the state, declared it was of great importance that some decision be obtained without great delay as the state now has more than 250 convicts at Aldrich mines who have been idle since the bankruptcy petition was filed and who cannot be used until some decision is obtained. He said the state could not withdraw the convicts from the mines at this time because of the pendency of the proceedings for the dismissal of the bankruptcy petition.

Judge Clayton adjourned court for 10 minutes and requested the attorneys for the state and company to attempt to get together. The state insisted on a trial next Saturday and the defense would not agree to it. On the reconvening of court, Mr. Cabness read to the court a federal statute which provided that 10 days notice should be given to all creditors of any proposal for the dismissal of a bankruptcy case. This notice had not been given. Judge Mayfield pointed out that this involved involuntary proceedings only, but Judge Clayton ruled that time should be given and set the hearing for March 3.

It was in this connection that Mr. Black requested notice of any proposal to transfer the case to Judge Grubb. Judge Clayton informed the attorneys that he was judge of the northern district as well as the middle district and proposed to continue to hear the case until its final disposition. He said any side which did not agree with his decision, when rendered, could appeal to another and higher court.

In his preliminary statement to the court, Judge Crum, for the defense, said witnesses would be offered in the case and that the company proposed to show that there was no collusion in the proceedings and that no effort was being made to practice fraud upon the state.

SAW SIGNIFICANCE IN MOLE

Writer of Long Ago Pointed Out the Meaning of Spots on the Human Anatomy.

Have you a little brown mole concealed somewhere about your anatomy that you sometimes show to your friends—and sometimes don't? Well, every little mole has a meaning of its own, according to a chap-book this was current in the Eighteenth century entitled "Dreams and Moles, With Their Interpretation and Significance" (printed and sold in Aldermany church yard, Bow lane, London). Whether you are to be happy or unhappy, lucky or unlucky in life, depends upon where your little pet is located. Here are some of the interpretations given in the old chap-book:

A mole on the right shoulder denotes happiness to man or woman.

A mole on the left shoulder denotes a man to be quarrelsome, but a woman to have many husbands.

On the left cheek denotes frankness in man or woman.

On the left ribs, exactly in man, vanity and pride in woman.

Near the right shoulder, you are to be a slave to love if a man, and to be beloved of great men, if you are a woman.

A mole on the right side of the abdomen means riches for a man and happiness in marriage for a woman.

One under the right breast presages good fortune in your ventures; on the back, riches and honor.

A mole on the right arm denotes that you will rule your own house hold; one on your left arm, that you will be a slave to duty.

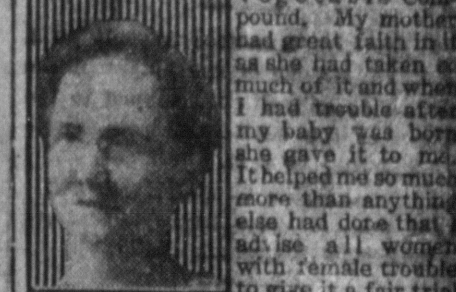

A mole on the right hip signifies good fortune in wedlock to man or woman.—Kansas City Star.

Kenosha, Wisconsin.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My mother had great faith in it and she had taken as much of it and when I had trouble after my baby was born she gave it to me. It helped me so much more than anything else had done that I advise all women with female trouble to give it a fair trial and I am sure they will feel as I do about it.—Mrs. FRED P. HANSEN, 622 Symmonds St., Kenosha, Wisconsin.

A medicine that has been in use nearly fifty years and that receives the praise and commendation of mothers and grandmothers is worth your consideration.

If you are suffering from troubles that sometimes follow child-birth, bear in mind that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is especially adapted to correct such troubles.

The letters we publish ought to convince you; ask some of your women friends or neighbors—they know its worth. You will, too, if you give it a fair trial.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Has Elizabeth Secret Disciplinary Methods?

I FOUND Lillian in Mother Graham's room entertaining a rapturous Junior with the tale of "The Three Bears," of which he never tires. She looked up with an apologetic grin as I entered.

"I suppose I should have begun to dress him," she said, "but he is so adorable that I couldn't resist his demand for a story." And Marion is growing up so fast.

There was the note in her voice which I have heard often from mothers whose children are too old for delightful baby footies, and for an instant I felt an apprehensive little shiver as I envisioned the time coming to me when my little lad should grow to his boyhood stature and need me less and less each year.

Of course, you have slipped beyond "pardon," I smiled at her tenderly, as I brought Junior's little clothes, and then hurried through his dressing to her.

"Now," I drew a long breath when we had finished in reality, "I am glad to hear your next assignment," Mother Graham demanded for breakfast, and Elizabeth announced that her children must not be given a command of any sort, that it is against her principles to command them, and that she wishes to request them to come in and wash.

"What a precious old dear she is!" Lillian commented, as we started to the door. "Do you want my advice?"

There was a quizzical smile to her eyes, of which I had learned the meaning long ago. It always means holding an offender upon his own petard.

"I fancy I shall appreciate it," I answered demurely.

"Call Elizabeth's bluff," she said. "Don't summon her children until you reach a spot where both she and you mother-in-law can hear you through the open windows. Then clearly and sweetly, oh quite sweetly, request the children to come in. Marion was one of the most obedient without a second call, but doubt it with this performance they're all staring. Then turn and walk in safely leave to your mother-in-law."

I obeyed her suggestions implicitly with the net result of one. "In a minute, please, Auntie Madge," from Marion.

"There, Elizabeth!"

The other four children paid no more attention to my loud and clear, "Children, please come in now and wash."

What Lillian and Madge Saw from the Window.

MADGE, are you awake?" Lillian's whisper roused me from the slumber which I had guiltily snatched under my mother-in-law's very nose after Elizabeth's assurance that "nothing" was going on.

The faintest light was streaming in through the window, and I had just opened my eyes when I saw Lillian and Madge standing in the doorway, looking in at the housewife's deliberations at every turn.

Her mother-in-law, did not open her mouth in speech once during the entire morning, and I guessed that the outward placidity of her face covered a seething storm of indignation and hate to disturb me, but I think Mother's attitude might be, and when I finally opened to the inner door, where Lillian had been playing the role of chambermaid, she was covered with her head and fell almost insensibly. When Lillian spoke, it seemed to me that I had heard a second or two, and my answer was almost impatient.

Lillian's mother-in-law, did not open her mouth in speech once during the entire morning, and I guessed that the outward placidity of her face covered a seething storm of indignation and hate to disturb me, but I think Mother's attitude might be, and when I finally opened to the inner door, where Lillian had been playing the role of chambermaid, she was covered with her head and fell almost insensibly. When Lillian spoke, it seemed to me that I had heard a second or two, and my answer was almost impatient.

"Only just gone to sleep," I answered. "But come in."

"Only just came in an hour and a half," she said, coming up to the bed and smiling faintly down at me. "I have to disturb you, but I think Mother's attitude might be, and when I finally opened to the inner door, where Lillian had been playing the role of chambermaid, she was covered with her head and fell almost insensibly. When Lillian spoke, it seemed to me that I had heard a second or two, and my answer was almost impatient."

"What are the children doing?" I asked, yawning lazily.

"That's what I'm here for," she returned. "I don't want you to miss it, so I'm coming into your room to the window before Mother Graham gets hold of you."

I scolded into the room assigned Lillian one window of which gives a view of the front lawn.

"Don't let them catch you looking at them," she admonished. "You know what self-conscious beings children are."

She nestled ourselves, accordingly, on either side of the window and peered out from the curtain upon the temperate morning below.

"I feel exactly like Rebecca reporting to 'Vivian,' Lillian chuckled. "Look at that!"

"What Can You Do?"

"That," was evidently a "narrade," headed by Jerry, cheerfully grinning, but evidently enjoying himself.

With an automobile blanket draped about him, a big towel wound around his head, and whip in his hand, he led an old cavalry horse—Jerry's one great possession, and special pride—in out into the "back yard." Climbing lightly to the horse's mane was Roderick, Mrs. Harrison's youngest, an adorable but palpably uneasy little figure in blue rompers.

His two brothers, marched next, attired in various brilliantly-colored articles, among which I recognized with dismay one of my pet pieces of Chinese embroidery.

Marion brought up a rather formidable rear, pulling a refractory colt by a rope. But her face was shining with the joy of the dramatic which is ingrained in her, and she evidently had no thought as yet that she was in "bad" company, being "put upon."

But Mary Harrison!

"Solomon in all his glory!" Lillian murmured, as Elizabeth's eldest daughter flashed across the lawn on a bicycle, and after riding up and down at the side of the parade, suddenly called: "Halt!" and riding more slowly, gradually lifted herself until she was balanced skilfully, if a bit unconvictionally upon the handle-bars. She held the pose for a second, then leaped to the ground, curtsied low, and threw kisses right and left with all the aplomb of a seasoned circus equestrienne.

She evidently had commandeered with or without her mother's knowledge, her very best dancing frock, a striking thing of scarlet chiffon, which I privately thought much too pronounced for a child, but when I had to admit suited her, I was glad to see it.

Marion, you go now and be the audience.

"All right," Marion responded cheerfully. "But when am I going to perform?"

"You're not going to perform," Mary retorted decisively. "What can you do?"

CAN DO WONDERS IN CANOE

Eskimos Are Literally Part of the Frail Craft Which They Have Named a "Kayak."

Built of seal skin, with the fur inside, stretched over a framework of wood, the Eskimo canoe—called a "kayak"—is only about ten feet long, and often not two feet wide at its widest part, tapering "to nothing" at both ends. The greatest width of the kayak is at the middle. Here there is a combing which slightly rises above the deck. The rest of the deck, save this hole just large enough to admit of the passage of the body of a man, is covered with seal skin.

When the Eskimo goes out in a kayak, he puts on a special seal skin, waterproof shirt over his regular clothing. With very great care he steps into the kayak, sliding his feet over the tender bottom until he is seated on the wooden seat which is only the thickness of the wood above the bottom. Then he draws over the combing the end of his shirt, which tightly fits the combing part of the kayak.

Experts of Greenland learn to turn a somersault in a canoe and come up again on even keel, an exchange states. But the best of the Eskimos of Greenland are not content with merely being able to right the kayak when it overturns. They practice until they are able to paddle the kayak in such a way that they shoot ahead on their course even as they turn that dangerous somersault in the sea.

POOR PLACE TO HIDE MONEY

French Peasant Now Convinced That Shotgun Is Unreliable as a Bank of Deposit.

The ingenuity of French peasants in hiding money has surpassed itself in the case of a man near Lorient who received a 1,000 franc note and a 500 franc note in payment for produce. He hid them in the muzzle of his double-barreled shotgun, believing that would be the last place thieves could search for money.

He made a mistake, however, in not taking his wife into the secret. A neighbor called a few days later, in the absence of the man of the house, and asked for the loan of the gun to get a hare.

The hare escaped and when the peasant came in that evening his wife remarked that the neighbor must be a very bad shot.

"Why?" the peasant asked.

"Because he used both charges of your gun on a hare without hitting it."

"My shotgun?" inquired the peasant with a gasp, at the same time making for the corner where the weapon hung.

The civil court of the department of Morbihan will have to decide the delicate point of law whether the neighbor is responsible for the loss of the 1,500 francs.

Few Slang Phrases Last.

The leniency with which some school teachers look on the use of slang, as reported in various interviews, may shock those of an age to have secured their ideal of correct English from the McGuffey series of readers. It is true that the selections composing those readers were of an era wherein the language was at variance with what is heard today. It may have been stilted, but it did not corrupt the mind of the pupil.

In fact, many persons got from the old fifth and sixth readers their knowledge of good literature. There was not a word resembling slang in the books.

It is true that slang is expressive. That is why it is used. Yet much of it quickly passes out of use because it is overworked. Few words suffer a like fate, though occasionally under stress of circumstances a word of creditable origin is repeated to the point where it becomes necessary to discard it because it is "shopworn."

Pittsburgh-Gazette-Times.

Express Dragon Flies.

When we come to birds, we find many very high speeds. Swifts have been known to overtake an airplane in flight. Their speed has been calculated to exceed one hundred miles an hour sometimes. The racing pigeon has on several occasions done short journeys at sixty miles an hour. The golden plover is very speedy, but his turning, twisting flight makes it difficult to time him accurately over any distance. The pheasant, though, he does not look a very rapid flier, can do 45 miles an hour.

Among insects, the most rapid is probably the dragon-fly, who does as much as 30 miles an hour in his swift dashes from place to place. The bee is capable of traveling at a speed of 20 miles an hour, and he achieves it by beating his wings more than 600 times a second—sixty beats for every yard he travels.

Gauges Food by Cans.

Dingley, who hails from the West and is merely a sojourner in the big city, sees all sorts of things to make him wonder.

"Out where I come from when you ask a waiter about the slowness of the service he always tells you 'It's on the fire.' But it's different here. A few evenings ago I ordered pork and apple sauce. The pork came in due time, but the apple sauce was missing. I inquired about it and the waiter replied: 'I'll have it for you in a minute. Just opening a fresh can.'"

"It there's anything that doesn't come in a can, the New Yorker thinks it isn't fresh, apparently. I'm afraid to order eggs for fear I'll learn they come in a can, too."—New York Sun.

The civil court of the department of Morbihan will have to decide the delicate point of law whether the neighbor is responsible for the loss of the 1,500 francs.

Few Slang Phrases Last.

The leniency with which some school teachers look on the use of slang, as reported in various interviews, may shock those of an age to have secured their ideal of correct English from the McGuffey series of readers. It is true that the selections composing those readers were of an era wherein the language was at variance with what is heard today. It may have been stilted, but it did not corrupt the mind of the pupil.

In fact, many persons got from the old fifth and sixth readers their knowledge of good literature. There was not a word resembling slang in the books.

It is true that slang is expressive. That is why it is used. Yet much of it quickly passes out of use because it is overworked. Few words suffer a like fate, though occasionally under stress of circumstances a word of creditable origin is repeated to the point where it becomes necessary to discard it because it is "shopworn."

Express Dragon Flies.

When we come to birds, we find many very high speeds. Swifts have been known to overtake an airplane in flight. Their speed has been calculated to exceed one hundred miles an hour sometimes. The racing pigeon has on several occasions done short journeys at sixty miles an hour. The golden plover is very speedy, but his turning, twisting flight makes it difficult to time him accurately over any distance. The pheasant, though, he does not look a very rapid flier, can do 45 miles an hour.

Among insects, the most rapid is probably the dragon-fly, who does as much as 30 miles an hour in his swift dashes from place to place. The bee is capable of traveling at a speed of 20 miles an hour, and he achieves it by beating his wings more than 600 times a second—sixty beats for every yard he travels.

Gauges Food by Cans.

Dingley, who hails from the West and is merely a sojourner in the big city, sees all sorts of things to make him wonder.

"Out where I come from when you ask a waiter about the slowness of the service he always tells you 'It's on the fire.' But it's different here. A few evenings ago I ordered pork and apple sauce. The pork came in due time, but the apple sauce was missing. I inquired about it and the waiter replied: 'I'll have it for you in a minute. Just opening a fresh can.'"

"It there's anything that doesn't come in a can, the New Yorker thinks it isn't fresh, apparently. I'm afraid to order eggs for fear I'll learn they come in a can, too."—New York Sun.
